Drive connected experiences with a powerful DXP

Take Control of Your Digital Marketing Success

“From the start of our solution search, we knew we wanted a system that was easy to use. Despite setting that bar going in, Progress Sitefinity still managed to surpass expectations and we were surprised with how easy the training went when we grabbed nontechnical personnel from different departments.”

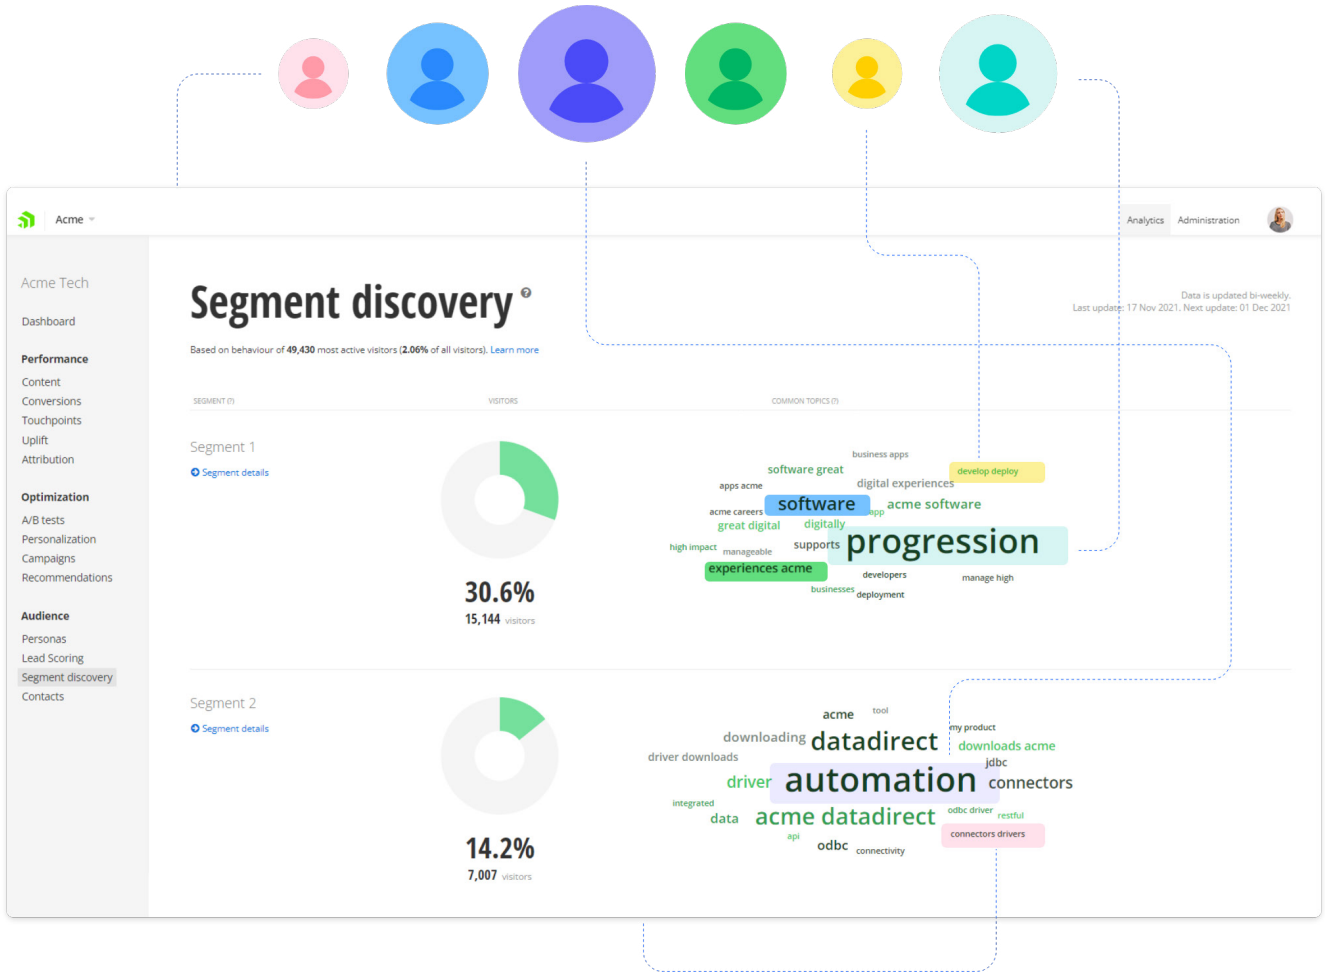

Rafal Jakubowicz
Manager of Digital Operations, Teknion

As a marketing leader, you're under pressure to execute successful digital marketing programs that accelerate business growth. This means you need to deliver fresh, personalized omnichannel experiences that engage your audience at each step along the customer journey. But without tools that enable marketing agility, you have to rely on technical resources to create and optimize your content and digital experiences. The result? Frustrating delays that hamper program effectiveness and impede progress toward business goals.

At the same time, you need insight into what's working and what's not to get maximum impact from your digital marketing spend. After all, the ability to track program effectiveness and refine experiences on the fly helps you achieve desired outcomes. That's why a holistic, cross-channel view of the customer experience is critical to understanding your audience and delivering targeted content that influences behavior and drives conversions.
